

Thomas Haller to Host Health Line on WSGW

If you would have tuned in last week, you would have heard Thomas Haller answer these questions.

- Q: When starting a new relationship that seems to have great possibilities, both parties are usually in their "dating behavior" mode. How long does "dating behavior" typically last and what "clues" can a person look for to help determine if the other person is not acting like their true self?
- Q: My eight year old keeps asking who I love more between him and his three siblings. I keep telling him that I love them all the same, but this doesn't seem to be enough of an answer for him. What do you suggest I say?
- Q: My nine-year-old lies all the time. He lies about home work, brushing his teeth, feeding the dog, cleaning his room or even what he did with his friends yesterday. You can see him do something and ask him about it and he denies ever being involved. I don't know what to do to get him to stop lying. Help!

Now you can have your important question answered and your concerns addressed by joining Thomas live on the radio as he hosts Health Line on WSGW 790 AM.

On Saturday, September 4th from 11:00 am to 12:00 noon Thomas will be answering parenting and relationship questions on WSGW 790 AM. At some point in life we all have an important parenting or relationship question that calls for an important answer. Yet, we don't want to spend hours searching the internet for that answer. We don't want to read page after page in a self-help book to find that answer. We just want someone to tell us straight out how to get started or what to do next. Quick and easy advice from a professional is all that is needed. That is exactly what Thomas Haller gives.

Parenting strategies and relationship advice is Thomas's specialty. After more than twenty years in private practice as a child, adolescent and couples therapist Thomas has heard it all and answered peoples hard questions.

Tune in and call in. You deserve an answer.
